Editor's Note

Last year has seen the 12th anniversary of this journal since its inception in 2007 and we are now entering the 13th year of publication. Compared with most other well-known journals in Thailand, ours is quite young and small. The average number of published articles per issue is only about ten or fewer, after all efforts to improve on it. However, of those small numbers we try to keep an acceptable standard with respect to content and presentation in order to uphold the policy of the publisher, which focuses on quality of the published articles. This inevitably affects publication time to some extent and we apologise many authors for the delay. However, we are trying our utmost to address this problem and sincerely hope things should get better this year.
