Maejo International Journal of Science and Technology

Editor's Note

The fields of science and technology are so vast that it is clearly impossible for a journal of that name to handle all of them. We therefore advise authors to check in our journal website before submission whether the content of their article conforms to the scope of our journal in order to save their valuable time of submission. The journal's format (e.g. headings, references) and requirements (e.g. English, referees) are also the next important things to check and conform to before submission in order to save time. Unfortunately, we do not normally check for novel contribution and plagiarism upon submission due to time limit, so a manuscript containing either of them may be rejected at the very last stage of processing, which is usually several months after submission.
